Robert Adams Jr

Developer

I have roughly 17 years of computer experience including but not limited to IT (Information Technology) fields in both the Military and Corporate worlds. Currently I am working towards my Computer Security Degree. Serving in the US Army for three years afforded me the opportunity to continue my education even after I served my time.

The '1&0' in my company name '1&0 Computer Care' refers to the Binary Number system in which all computers use. It is a simple yet complex string of 1's and 0's. It allows our computers to perform all manner of operations, from turning on a light bulb to listening to the heart of a baby still in the womb. Although you may not see the 010's you can bet they are there.
